> Gen. Grant, who is filling the position of riding master for the colonels, lieutenant colonels and majors, is said to partake very much of the Roosevelt type of strenuosity. He is himself a daring and graceful rider, and at times he is said to have led his brother officers a wild chase and spurt over the clay roads of Fairfax

> While Gen. Grant is said to have sat upon his animal with the ease of a centaur, some of the officers, especially those who are assigned to "doughboy" commands, had a rather rough time of it. After the cavalcade had covered about twenty miles yesterday forenoon, Maj. Charles L. Potter, Corps of Engineers, stationed at Tompkinsville, N. Y., sud-denly became nauseated. It was explained that his illness resulted from some strong medicine he had taken the night before for stomach trouble. Maj. Potter is a very large man, weighing 260 pounds and standing six feet four in his socks. He declined to return to camp. but stuck it out with the column. He was furnished a fresh horse this morning for the return ride and wind-up of the
